

Economic Narratives Advancing the Longest Economic Expansion 2009-2019

Faculty Member: Robert J. Shiller

Proposal Description:

I am committed to present a paper at the American Economic Association Annual Convention January 3, 2020: Popular Economic Narratives Advancing the Longest U.S. Expansion 2009-2019

The paper is to describe changing economic narratives through time 2009-2019, by reading and doing digital text analysis. The method is outlined in my AEA presidential address 2017: <https://cowles.yale.edu/sites/default/files/files/pub/d20/d2069.pdf>.

Research will involve reading newspapers between 2009-2019, attempting to quantify their frequencies through time, and having biweekly meetings with me to discuss changing popular economic attitudes and theories that affect economic outcomes..

Requisite Skills and Qualifications:

General knowledge of economic theory, interest in recent history. Knowledge of a major foreign language could be an asset.

Award: Megan Xu

Tobin Application Link: Tobin Application

Project Type: Tobin

Project Year: 2019

Term: Fall 2019

Source URL: <https://economics.yale.edu/undergraduate/tobin/fall-2019/economic-narratives-advancing-longest-economic-expansion-2009-2019>