Impacts of Temporary Migration on Educational Outcomes of Children Left Behind: A Case Study in the Philippines

Development Lunch
Event time: Monday, October 21, 2019 - 12:00pm
Add to Calendar

28 Hillhouse Ave., Room 106
Speaker, Affiliation: Siuyuat Wong, Yale University

Abstract: In developing countries, parents often temporarily migrate to exploit the large spatial differences in wages, inevitably leaving loved ones behind. This paper analyses the trade-off between increased income and the changes in family structure on the educational outcomes of children with the use of a novel dataset.

Source URL: https://economics.yale.edu/event/impacts-temporary-migration-educational-outcomes-children-left-behind-case-study-philippines