A course for 3rd and 4th year students doing research in econometrics to assist in research start-up, to prepare prospectuses and to present dissertation work. Students are required to give one presentation in the prospectus lunch each semester and are encouraged to give two talks, one that overviews problems that interest them with potential for further research and one that provides more detailed developments in preparation for the required prospectus.

Semester offered: Spring