Econ 335a. Growth and Macroeconomics

Day / time: M/W 9:00-10:15am
Course Type: Undergraduate
Course term: Fall
Year: 2018
Instructor(s): Fabrizio Zilibotti

This course explores core concepts in growth theory and macroeconomics, aimed at providing a good grounding in the theoretical concepts, as well as their applications to practical realities in economies. The course will cover central topics in macroeconomics, including productivity, capital markets, labor markets, trade, financial crises, and aggregate supply and demand.

[also Econ 546b] For IDE students.

Semester offered: Fall
Undergrad Course Category: Macroeconomics

Source URL: https://economics.yale.edu/courses/econ-335a-growth-and-macroeconomics