Econ 449b. The Economic Analysis of Conflict

Day / time: Th 9:25 - 11:15 am
Course Type: Undergraduate
Course term: Spring
Instructor(s): Gerard Padro

Since the end of WWII the overwhelming majority of war casualties have been the result of internal conflict. This includes insurgency situations in which foreign powers prop up a weak internal government. In this course we apply microeconomic techniques, theoretical and empirical, to the analysis of internal conflict, its causes and consequences. Topics include forced migration, ethnic conflict, long-term consequences of war and individual choices to participate in violence. Readings comprise frontier research papers and students will learn to critically engage with cutting-edge research designs.

Prerequisites: Intermediate micro and econometrics.

Semester offered: Spring
Undergrad Course Category: History
Political Economy
