Econ 630a. Labor Economics

Day / time: Tuesday/Thursday 9:00-10:20
Course Type: Graduate
Course term: Fall
Year: 2018
Instructor(s): Costas Meghir
Location: Room 106

First semester: Topics covered will include: approaches to labor supply and family coordination of time allocation and commodity demand, incorporating gender and generational bargaining; human capital, job tenure, union status, and discrimination as wage determinants; wage inequality as affected by skill supplies, minimum wages, unions, immigration, and international trade; interpretation of compensating variations in wages as evidence on employer demands, job and location amenities.

Semester offered: Fall

Source URL: https://economics.yale.edu/courses/econ-630a-labor-economics