This workshop is a forum for discussion about research in International Trade. Yale graduate students conducting dissertation research in issues related to International Trade are strongly encouraged to present their work. They need to discuss guidelines and scheduling with the seminar organizers. Students who anticipate undertaking work in trade are expected to attend the workshop and to register at least during one semester.