European economic growth and development from the industrialization of Germany and other Continental countries in the early nineteenth century through World War II. The role of institutional development, the role of trade and imperialism, agricultural improvements, and industrialization.

After two terms of introductory economics.

Semester offered: Fall
Undergrad Course Category: History