Who are the Panelists?

Allen Granzberg is a Senior Manager at Bain & Company. Originally hailing from Brooklyn, New York, Allen graduated as a FGLI student from Yale University ('13) majoring in Ethics, Politics, and Economics. At Bain, Allen focuses most of his time in the M&A practice, particularly Merger Integration in the Healthcare space. Outside of work, Allen is a competitive ballroom dancer, tapas lover, and shrimp-eating-competition winner (yes, it's a thing). Feel free to ask him about Consulting, Russian food (his parents immigrated from the former USSR – Belarus), and the best NYC Happy Hours.

Cormac O'Dea is an Assistant Professor in the Economics Department at Yale where his research focuses on issues related to household saving, Social Security and inequality across households. Prior to Yale he worked at the Institute for Fiscal Studies, the UK's leading economic policy research institute.

Denise primarily focuses on cultivating and maintaining relationships with employers and alumni interested in recruiting Yale talent, while also advising students as they pursue their career goals. She oversees the On-Campus Recruiting program and several industry specific recruiting events. Denise began her career working in the financial sector and has held positions at two major financial institutions. She graduated from Stony Brook University and has a Master's in Education from Fordham University.

Pablo Cuevas is a Vice President in Citi's Global Industrials Group. While he provides advisory and capital raising services to a diverse set of industrials businesses, his primary focus is on automotive and next-generation mobility companies. In this role, he advised Ford through the creation of the Argo autonomous vehicle joint venture with Volkswagen and took Fisker public via a de-SPAC transaction with Spartan Energy Acquisition Corporation. He remains an avid swimmer, having trained for and competed in the 2018 Gay Games hosted in Paris, France, where he won 4 gold and 1 bronze medal.
